equal prominence, and has more of Geographical Science and Fact, and less of detail, than any other system.

3. The Maps are, eminently accurate and far superior to all competitors, and the matter is logically arranged.
4. From these books a series adapted to any grade of Schools can be selected.

GOODRICH'S SERIES OF PICTORIAL HISTORIES.

By the universally popular "PETER PARLEY."

COMPRISING:

Goodrich's American Child's Pictorial History of the U.S.
Goodrich's Pictorial History of the United States.
Goodrich's Pictorial History of England.
Goodrich's Pictorial History of France.
Goodrich's Pictorial History of Rome.
Goodrich's Pictorial History of Greece.
Goodrich's Common School History of the World.
Goodrich's Pictorial Natural History.

CHARACTERISTICS:

1. This series presents graded historical text-books.
2. The different books are printed in a clear and beautiful type, and the illustrations are unequalled in number and artistic execution.
3. The matter is divided into easy and comprehensive periods.
4. The pages are free from religious preferences and political prejudices.
5. The topical arrangement of the contents, and the alphabetical indexes of the larger books, enhance their usefulness.
6. The great historical facts, eventful epochs, and important dates, are presented in a lively and pleasing style.
7. The Child's History has the merit of brevity without baldness; the Pictorial U. S., completeness without redundancy.
8. All the books of the Series are elegantly and substantially bound.
9. They are all NEW EDITIONS, brought down to the present time.

The points of excellence, rendered specially prominent by the actual test of the school-room, and embodied in the recommendations of many of the first educators of the country, may be briefly noted.

BINGHAM'S ENGLISH GRAMMAR.

"The subject is discussed in the most philosophical manner."—"The conformity of the rules to the Latin Grammar is a step in the right direction."

BINGHAM'S LATIN GRAMMAR.

"Comprehensiveness of details."—"Copious exercises in immediate connection with every theoretical principle."—"Correctness, clearness and conciseness of its rules of gender."—"The careful marking of the quantity of the vowels."—"Perfectly simple, progressive and rigorously exact."—Its admirable method of treating the gender of the third declension."—"Methodical, clear and direct."—"It is a most admirably arranged Drill-book."—"Sufficiently advanced for the college student."—"Sufficiently elementary for the beginner."

BINGHAM'S LATIN READER.

"The only Latin reader in which the quantity of the vowels is marked."—"It is just what the young Latin pupil needs previous to commencing Cæsar."

BINGHAM'S CÆSAR.

"One of the neatest, cleanest and most attractive classical works published."—"Worthy of the Grammar."—"Handsomely printed, substantially and neatly bound."

PREFACE.

67514

FOR years past teachers have been demanding a spelling-book suitable for children.

This little work has been prepared by one who, in common with his fellow-teachers, has pitied children compelled to memorize long lists of words, many of which they rarely use in after life, and to which they can seldom attach any meaning.

We claim for this book a plan simple and methodical. Lessons are first given which illustrate the vowel sounds. Then, beginning at home, a list of words is given suggestive of a detailed description of well-known objects. From home and its surroundings the child is led by easy steps to other familiar places of interest.

As his range of vision is extended his vocabulary increases, and thus his language is built up. He needs to know how to spell these words, and he should be taught to weave them into sentences as well as to spell them, for the words are not his until he can so use them.

Much care has been taken in the preparation of the illustrations that accompany these lessons. The ingenious teacher will find them a great help in conducting the spelling exercise. In all cases the picture should form an introduction to the lesson. The children should find the objects, name them, describe their qualities and spell the words thus used.

Believing that this book will accomplish a good work in the hands of judicious teachers, we submit it to them, and ask that it be tried in the crucible of the school-room.

Entered, according to Act of Congress, in the year 1872, by

SUGGESTIONS TO TEACHERS.

NEVER allow your children to pass over a word whose meaning they do not understand. Be thorough.

Lead the children to put the words into sentences as they are spelled—not careless sentences, but such as mean something. This will be a great help to them in acquiring the rapid use of language. Study the wants of your pupils, and adapt the exercise to their advancement.

HOW TO CONDUCT SPELLING CLASSES.

The children come into the class with their spelling-books open at the lesson. The teacher calls upon one of the children to find something in the picture. The child finds, perhaps, the picture of a man, and the question is then asked, "How many see the picture of a man?" All see it. The teacher then calls upon another child to point out some other object, and continues as before till the lesson is finished. Proceed in a similar method to obtain the actions or qualities of the objects represented.

It would be a good plan to have the more simple objects sketched upon the board. Encourage the children to do this. Educate the hand. They can very easily represent such common objects as a hat, broom, box, book, man, etc. Let them sketch as much as possible, and have the words printed on the board after the children have used them.

After the picture has been examined and the names of the objects have been discussed, a few minutes' study will be sufficient to fix the spelling in the minds of the children.

To review the lesson, the children bring their slates into the class. The teacher pronounces the words, and the children print or write them on their slates. At the close of this part of the exercise the children are directed to exchange slates. They are now ready to spell from the slates. A child rises, and spells the first word just as it is written on the slate he holds. The children decide as to its correctness. If correct, it is not marked or checked; if incorrect, it is marked. The others check the words on their slates if incorrect, sum up misspelled words and report to the teacher at roll-call.

Again, after the allotted time for preparation the children assemble in the class-room. The class is divided into groups of three. The first three rise. Number one spells the word, number two sketches the object named by it on the board if able to do so (if not, gives a sentence containing the word), whilst number three prints the word on the board. As the first three finish the second three rise, proceed in a similar manner, and so on for the whole class.

Noiseless Review.—After studying, the children pass to the board in order, and each prints any word remembered until the lesson is all on the board; then each child rises in order, giving a sentence for the word he placed on the board.

To review the lesson in another manner, allow the children to choose sides and pronounce from memory the words studied or spell them as the teacher dictates.

Another method of conducting an exercise in spelling is as follows: The teacher holds up an object or has a picture of it placed on the board, asks for the name of the object, has one or more of the pupils write or print its name on the board, asks for the sound of each letter, then for the name of each letter, and lastly asks for the name of the object.

On the next page will be found an object lesson on one of the illustrations, to show the plan of drawing out the ideas of the children by means of the pictures.

OBJECT LESSON.

SEE PICTURE ON PAGE 28.

Teacher. Point to something which you see in the picture, and tell me what it is.

Child. I see a man (pointing to one in the picture).

Teach. What other name can you give for him besides man?

Ch. Gentleman.

Teach. Point to something else and give its name.

Ch. Baby.

Teach. By what other name do we sometimes call babies?

Ch. Infants.

Teach. Name something else which you see in the picture.

Ch. Another man.

Teach. What kind of a man is he?

Ch. An old man.

Teach. Name something else.

Ch. A boy and a girl.

Teach. Or in one word you can say that you see some—

Ch. Children.

Teach. What else can you see?

Ch. Another man.

Teach. By whom is he standing?

Ch. By the children.

Teach. I see some one else. Which of you can tell me who it is?

Ch. A woman.

Teach. Or, a—

Ch. Lady.

Teach. Who sees some one else?

Ch. I see two more women.

Teach. Each one tell me something else you see.

Ch. Basket, spring-balance, table, chair, etc.

Teach. Look at the old man and tell me what he has.

Ch. He has the baby in a basket.

Teach. Where is the basket?

Ch. On the spring-balance.

Teach. What do you think the old man is going to do with the baby?

Ch. Weigh it.

Teach. Look at him. How do you think he feels toward the baby?

Ch. He loves it.

Teach. What relation do you think he is to the baby?

Ch. Grandfather.

Teach. Yes; he is the baby's grandfather. But there is somebody I don't see in the picture; who do you think it is?

Ch. The baby's grandmother.

Teach. What is the baby to its grandfather and grandmother?

Ch. Their grandchild.

Teach. Let us look at that man by the grandfather. How does he look?

Ch. Pleasant.

Teach. What relation do you think he is to the baby?

Ch. Its father.

Teach. What is the father doing?

Ch. He is pointing to the baby in the basket.

Teach. With what?

Ch. His hand.

Teach. What relation do you think the lady next to him is to the baby?

Ch. Its mother.

Teach. If she is the baby's mother, what is she to the baby's father?

Ch. His wife.

Teach. And he is her—

Ch. Husband.

Teach. What relation do you think the other lady is to the one in the chair?

Ch. Her sister.

Teach. What relation is she, then, to the baby?

Ch. Its aunt.

Teach. What relation do you think that man is to the baby's father?

Ch. His brother.

Teach. Then he is what relation to the baby?

Ch. Uncle.

Teach. You called the little boy and girl his children. What would they be to the baby?

Ch. Its cousins.

Teach. What is the other woman doing?

Ch. Taking the dishes from the table.

Teach. What do you think she is in this family?

Ch. Servant.

Teach. Name the part of the body with which you hear what I am saying.

Ch. Ear.

Teach. Your ear is on what part of your body?

Ch. Head.

Teach. What else is on your head?

Ch. Hair.

Teach. Anything else?

Ch. Nose, chin, face, etc.

THE END.

PUBLICATIONS OF E. H. BUTLER & CO.

HOWS' SERIES OF LADIES' READERS.

By JOHN W. S. HOWS, Professor of Elocution.

THIS SERIES COMPRISES:

How's Primary Ladies' Reader.

How's Junior Ladies' Reader.

How's Ladies' Reader.

How's Ladies' Book of Readings and Recitations.

The selections have been carefully and judiciously made, and the essential rules of elocution condensed into the briefest and most practical form. They are the only complete Series of Ladies' Readers published.

Smith's English Grammar.

English Grammar on the Productive System: A method of Instruction recently adopted in Germany and Switzerland; designed for Schools and Academies. By ROSWELL C. SMITH.

More extensively used than any other English Grammar published.

Stewart's Philosophy of the Active and Moral Powers of Man.

Reid's Intellectual Powers of Man.

Printed in a clear, attractive style, and handsomely and durably bound. The names of the Authors are sufficient guarantees of the worth of the books.

The Best School Etymology.

THE SCHOLAR'S COMPANION.

By RUFUS W. BAILEY.

For the vast majority of our pupils who can never hope to attain a classical education, this work is INVALUABLE, giving as it does a clear idea of the derivations, meaning and use of words. For PRACTICAL TEACHING it is unsurpassed.

TENNEY'S GEOLOGY.

BY SANBORN TENNEY, A.M.,

Professor of Natural History, Williams College.

A New Edition of this Work, with over Two Hundred and Fifty Engravings.

What is said of it by experienced teachers:

"I regard Tenney's Geology as a MODEL school-book;"—"Does not frighten the beginner with voluminous details;"—"Presents the leading facts of the science in a clear and natural manner, and contains all that is required in an ordinary course of instruction."

The following standard works are comprised in this Series:

HART'S ENGLISH GRAMMAR.

HART'S ENGLISH GRAMMAR. PART I.

HART'S CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES. NEW EDITION.

HART'S CLASS BOOK OF POETRY.

HART'S CLASS BOOK OF PROSE.

These books are used in a large number of Public and Private Schools throughout the country. They have been found by long experience to be admirably arranged for the work of the school-room, and they have been recently revised and perfected.

HALDEMAN'S ENGLISH AFFIXES.

By Prof. S. S. HALDEMAN, A.M.

This standard work has just been thoroughly revised, and is now believed to be the most interesting and valuable work on the subject of which it treats.
